HONGKONG

The Rents Question
The Governor's Views
Legislative Relief

It would appear from the statement made by Sir Reginald Stubbs, the Governor of Hongkong, during the presentation of the budget at the Hongkong Legislative Council meeting last week, that the housing question is still an acute one in the colony, aggravated largely by the great influx of Chinese from Canton owing to the disordered state of that country. The amount of money that has been seeking investment in Hongkong as a result of this disorder has been considerable, and we are afraid when conditions settle down to a more or less stable state the bulk of these funds will begin to be liquidated in Hongkong to be reinvested in Canton. In such an event it is natural to expect a severe check to the prosperity of the colony likely to affect land and other values to a considerable extent.

It is probably with this idea in mind that the Governor of Hongkong deprecated the disorder. We are also glad to note that the Governor is with us in the opinion that the boom in landed values cannot last long, or in his own words, "indefinitely." Just how long it will enjoy this present run it is somewhat difficult to say in view of the complex character of the political situation, in the South, but if the opinion of those on the spot counts, and the Governor of Hongkong must be considered a shrewd observer, the land boom bubble in Hongkong is going to burst this coming year.

ARTIFICIAL MARKET

For one thing such a pronouncement by the head of the Government should serve to place a damper on gambling transactions in landed properties and precipitate the decline sooner than it would naturally come, for it must necessarily make the small speculator chary of embarking on such a hazardous enterprise. This continual appreciation of land prices is creating an artificial market in real estate values in Hongkong, but the colony is so restricted in nature that it is natural to expect that as Hongkong continues to grow in importance the demand for more accommodation would become more insistent. The government of the Southern Colony has in recent years been encouraging the small man to build his own home in order to relieve the congestion that now exists in Hongkong. New areas are continually being opened up for residential purposes, and in the course of time the beneficial effects of the Government scheme should become manifest.

Ever since Sir Reginald Stubbs landed on the shores of Hongkong the perplexing problem of providing accommodation for the growing population has been engaging his serious consideration, and his policy throughout has been fearless and on sound business lines. The Rents Restriction Ordinance was his idea, formulated and brought into force at a time when the Hongkong public was crying against the rapacious landlords who were piling up their rents on the poor tenants without mercy, making the situation an intolerable one. Opposition was naturally created to such a measure by the vested interests who read into this new legislation an interference with the rights of the landlords.

APPRECIATE RELIEF

The relief provided by this new ordinance was appreciated by the tenants, who could not be compelled to pay rentals above those prevailing in certain years. Landlords were not slow in detecting flaws in the new instrument of protection, and realised that demolition of their old buildings would put them out of the ambit of the ordinance. Soon there set in a regular fashion to demolish houses in Hongkong, which made the shortage question more acute, throwing hundreds of tenants out of their homes and compelling them to go and secure accommodation in an already hopelessly inadequately home provided town.

This coach and four that was driven through the Hongkong Rent Restriction Ordinance was successful for a time, until it became intolerable, and petitions drawing the attention of the authorities to the menace were sent in. The Hongkong government has now stepped in and will introduce an amendment to the ordinance making it impossible for landlords to pull down structures unless they are in a seriously dilapidated state. This will upset the schemes of the rent-rackers in the Southern colony and it would be interesting to see what other subterfuges they will apply in the future to circumvent the law obtaining there.

HOUSING REPORT

A housing commission was appointed in Hongkong sometime ago and in the report it made public last week it recommends the continuance of the Rents Restriction Ordinance until such time as the supply of houses meets the demand.

TSAO KUN ASKS TRUCE ON EVE OF TAKING OFFICE

COALITION IN PHILIPPINES PLANNING TO IGNORE WOOD

Governor's Message To Legislature Will Be Disregarded

PLANS ARE LAID

Filipinos Will Carry Their Fight To Washington

(Exclusive China Press)

Manila, Oct. 9.—Representative De La Rosa, a prominent leader of the Quezon faction, today announced that the coalitionists in the legislature will positively refuse to pay any attention to the message which Governor-General Leonard Wood will deliver at the opening session of the legislature on October 16.

Their attitude, the representative says, is based on the claim that the governor-general had not consulted with the council of state regarding the recommendations to be made in his message and that the council of state has virtually ceased to exist owing to the resignations of Quezon and Roxas during the cabinet crisis.

Evidences that the coalitionists will devote all their efforts to securing support for a non-cooperation policy are increasing. The plan, seemingly, is not to pass any measures recommended by the Governor-General but to pass other measures which, it is known, will be regarded as inimicable by the governor and will be vetoed by him. After the veto, these measures will be passed again over the veto, so that, in accordance with the law, they must be submitted to Washington for a final decision.

In this manner it is hoped to lend emphasis to the anti-Wood campaign in the eyes of the American people. The campaign is clearly being worked out so as to embarrass the governor and to force him to make a detailed explanation to Washington of his attitude in every case in which a bill is veto, and to deny him the measures necessary to administrate the islands properly.

The coalitionists also figure that there is a possibility of their making the subject of the administration of the Philippines an issue in America.

At the present time Governor Wood is on an inspection tour in Northern Luzon. He expects to prepare his message upon his return.

FORGES CHECKS OF SHIPPING LINE FOR TAELS 10,000

Chinese Ex-Employe Suspected In Fraud On Admiral Line

One of the cleverest and most audacious check forging swindles in local police history has come to light within the past few days, when it was discovered that four checks aggregating Tls. 10,992 and bearing perfectly imitated signatures had been passed through the International Banking Corporation against the Admiral Oriental Line.

A 21-year-old Chinese formerly employed by the shipping company is suspected of perpetrating the fraud and a warrant has been issued for his arrest, while his father, who is alleged to have given false information to the police, has been taken into custody and yesterday at the Mixed Court was charged with aiding his son, Wang Tsang-zeu, in forging and passing the checks. The father, Wang Sing-chuen, was ordered remanded one week, to be released on giving $3,000 shop security and his promise to assist the police. A search warrant was ordered issued in respect of a valuable residence recently acquired by Wang Tsang-zeu in South Chengtu Road and these premises were ordered sealed, while a motor car bought a short time ago by the young man was ordered held by the police.

Wang, it is stated, was discharged by the Admiral Line last May. He is said to have been familiar with the office procedure and the company's banking methods and to have presented a forged letter at the International Bank on September asking for the issue of a blank check book. The signature forged to the letter was that of Mr. H. T. Krull, the general agent, and a forged stamp of the company was affixed. The checkbook was issued without question and on the same date a check for Tls. 1,990.43 was presented at the bank and cashed. It bore not only the signature of Mr. Krull but also that of the company's accountant, Mr. C. Newberry—both perfect forgeries. On the same day a second check, for Tls. 3,406.43, was presented to the bank and was cashed. On September 15 a check for Tls. 2,990.46 was cashed. The fourth and last check cashed was for Tls. 2,605.10.

The fraud was discovered last Saturday when the balance sheet from the bank was being gone over and suspicion fell upon the former employe. Efforts were made immediately to locate him but he could not be found, though it is believed that he was in his home only a few minutes before the police arrived. His Chengtu Road house was found to be in charge of a young lady and his motor car was discovered. It is expected that he will be taken into custody within a few days.

STRESEMANN GOVERNMENT GAINS VOTE IN REICHSTAG

Abolition Of Emergency Measures Is Defeated

DEBATE IS BITTER

Nationalist Leader Asks Break With France

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Oct. 9.—The Reichstag today passed a vote of confidence in the Government against the vote of the Nationalists, the Bavarian People's Party and the Communists.

A resolution in favor of abolition of the state of emergency in the Reich and Bavaria was rejected. A Socialist motion was carried endorsing the Government's constitutional standpoint with regard to the exceptional measures in Bavaria.

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Oct. 9.—In the Reichstag debate yesterday, Count von Westarp, leader of the Nationalists, demanded a breach of relations with France with all consequences. His statement evoked cries of War! and hissing from the Left. He asserted that the Nationalists would oppose the Government's emergency law, on which a vote will be taken today.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Oct. 9.—It is reported from Duesseldorf that an agreement has been reached between the Inter-Allied Mines Commission and the Phoenix and Rheinische Stahlwerke Companies, which produce nearly ten percent of the Ruhr output.

Deliveries of coal will be resumed immediately under the Reparations Commission's conditions. Taxes will be paid on coal not delivered since the occupation of the Ruhr.

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Oct. 8.—The Reichsrat has adopted the draft emergency law by 46 votes to 17. Bavaria and some Prussian provinces opposed the bill. The new law decomes invalid with a change of Government or in any case on March 31, 1924. It authorises the Government of the Reich to take the measures it considers necessary and urgent in financial, economic, and social matters, and the provisions of the Constitution can thereby be disregarded. The authorisation, however, does not extend to the law, regulating working hours. The Reichstag will deal with the bill tomorrow.

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Oct. 8.—Communists have accepted the portfolios of Labour and Education in the Government of Saxony after negotiations with the Socialists, both parties recognising that the Government of the Reich is powerless against Dr. von Kahr and Herr Hitler, and that Communists and Socialists must unite determinedly to fight reaction. Conversation at Leipzig between the Saxon and Thuringian premiers on the question of forming an alliance of the Central States against Bavarian fascism has already resulted in recognition of the need for the formation of a Red bloc. Accordingly Communists will also join the Thuringian Government.

These developments have caused Dr. Stresemann to summon the premiers of Saxony and Thuringia to Berlin.

A meeting of Berlin Social-Democrats yesterday revealed a big split in the party on the subject of participation in the Stresemann Government. The feeling of the meeting was generally hostile to participation, but the vote was postponed for a fortnight.

Kearny Case Halted For Important Ruling On Legal Point Involved

Dismissal Decision To Be Given Today

Sensational Proceedings Fill Testimony At Yesterday's Hearing

Disputed legal authorities as to whether the burden of proof lies with the prosecution or the defense in showing that Civil Governor Chang of Chekiang has, or has not, the authority to purchase arms and munitions abruptly halted the second Kearny trial before Judge Charles S. Lobingier in the U. S. Court for China yesterday afternoon.

Judge Lobingier will hand down a ruling in what is considered one of the most important legal points raised in any of the arms cases when the case is resumed at 10 o'clock this morning. Under ordinary circumstances the court would not sit today—the Anniversary of the Republic of China—but because of the importance of the case and the point raised Judge Lobingier announced he would rule on the question this morning.

The question came as the climax to several sensational disclosures during the day's hearing when Mr. Paul F. Faison, associate counsel with Mr. C. S. Franklin in Captain Kearny's defense, submitted a motion for dismissal of the charge on the ground that the prosecution had failed to make their case.

INTIMIDATION

Earlier in the day U. S. District Attorney Leonard G. Husar startled the crowded courtroom with the assertion that Captain Kearny, through an agent named Goodwin, had attempted to intimidate Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Stein, two of the prosecution's witnesses. A little later Mr. Husar indicated that he might file still another arms charge against Kearny for the sale munitions to Chang Tso-lin, and several times during the hearing Mr. Husar asserted Captain Kearny was a wholesale dealer in munitions buying and selling indiscriminately in attempts to introduce testimony not directly involved in the case being tried.

NEGOTIATIONS

The first witness yesterday was Lieut. John C. R. Willemsen, formerly on Admiral Besoir's staff. He was the chief engineer of the ships at Gensan, he said, and to George A. Mayer, alleged to be Kearny's agent, at Seoul in April. Mayer asked about the possible chartering of the ships and purchase of the arms, he said, and after being introduced by Willemsen, carried on negotiations with General Ivanoff Rineff, which the witness said he overheard. Later, he said, he deciphered and decoded a telegram giving a list of the arms. They had about 3,000 rifles on board and 100 rounds of ammunition for every rifle, he said. There were also one field piece and some machine guns.

Willemsen said he first met Mr. Franklin in Nagasaki while he was on his way to Shanghai with Mayer. They had a conversation concerning the chartering of the five ships and Mr. Franklin, he said, produced the charter parties. All the vessels needed repairs, estimated to cost 15,000 yen, and when Mr. Franklin heard that he decided to return to Shanghai instead of going on to Korea, he said.

On reaching Shanghai witness spoke with Kearny about the

PEACE MISSION IS SENT TO MUKDEN; DECLARATION OF WAR ISSUED BY SUN

Southern Leader Dispatches Telegrams Asking Alliance With Tuan Chi-Jui, Chang Tso-lin and Lu Yung-hsiang In Effort To Defeat Newly Elected President

Marshal Tsao Kun, newly elected President of China, was to take office at Peking today, the twelfth anniversary of the founding of the Republic. According to late press reports last night, the newly elected President had not yet arrived at Peking, and the exact hour of his arrival there was in doubt, although it was fixed for some time last night or this morning.

As the hour for the inauguration of the new President drew nearer, open opposition to his taking office was voiced among several political factions. No direct comment on the election has as yet been made from Fengtien, although Marshal Chang Tso-lin, long an enemy of the Chihli party, has let it be known that, while he plans no aggression at this time, he is prepared to defend himself and the provinces which he controls.

In the South, Sun Yat-sen, Constitutionalist leader, has issued an open declaration of war against the Chihli leader and has appealed for the support of Marshal Chang, Marshal Tuan Chi-jui, the Anfuite leader, and General Lu Yung-hsiang, tupan of Chekiang. General Lu, since the election of Tsao Kun, has reaffirmed the statements previously made that he will have absolutely nothing to do with "one who is illegally elected or those who have elected him." He denies, however, that he has any war-like intentions.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 8.—Marshal Tsao Kun is still anxious with regard to the attitude of General Chang Tso-lin and has despatched Generals Pao Kwei-ching and Yuen Chang to Mukden to discuss reconciliation.

With regard to the rumors of an outbreak of hostilities, between the Fengtien and Chihli forces, it is understood that, in spite of Marshal Tsao Kun's election, General Chang Tso-lin, does not intend taking military measures at present unless there are developments in the Yangtsze Valley. If the Tuchun of Kiangsu invades Chekiang, then General Chang will be obliged to intervene.

The Governing Cabinet will continue in office until a permanent Cabinet is formed. Mr. Wu Yu-lin is now regarded as the most likely candidate for the Premiership.

It is now stated that President Tsao Kun will take the oath of office at noon on Wednesday at the Chu Jen Tang in the presence of the Members of both Houses of Parliament. Afterwards the Members of the Cabinet will enter and offer their congratulations. The railway is strongly guarded from Paotingfu to Peking by troops of the 23rd Division and others. It is believed that Marshal Tsao Kun will arrive in the capital tomorrow afternoon.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 8.—The financial situation is as bad as ever, but it is reported that the new President will find funds to pay the troops, police and gendarmerie here and the staffs of the Ministries.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 8.—The last meeting of the Constitution Drafting Conference will be held this afternoon, when the third reading of the Constitution will be passed. Subsequently the Constitution as passed will be written on a special cloth scroll. It is understood that Parliament has suggested the erection of a stone tower in front of the Presidency or the Chung Hua Men as a memento of the completing of the Constitution.

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, Oct. 9.—It has been decided that the inauguration ceremony of the new President will be held tomorrow. The exact time of Marshal Tsao Kun's entry into Peking is being kept secret for precautionary reasons but it is generally expected that he will arrive here either this evening or early tomorrow morning. The route all along the line between Peking and Paotingfu is being guarded strictly by a large force of military guards and police in plain clothes.

CHINA'S BIRTHDAY DAY OF MOURNING IS PROGRAM HERE

Tsao's Election Inspires Humiliation Meetings Among Local Chinese

Today is the 12th anniversary of the establishment of the Republic of China. Due to the alleged illegal election of Tsao Kun as president, it will be observed not as a day of festivities as in previous years but as a day of humiliation. Throughout the day, meetings will be held in schools and local organisations headquarters to protest against the election.

All the local Government bureaus, including the Yamen of the Defense Commissioner, the Customs House, the Police Bureau in Nantao, the Arsenal, the Mixed Courts and other offices will be closed to public business. The Chinese naval units in Woosung and Shanghai waters will dress ship.

The street unions are organising a motor car parade to demonstrate against the election in North China. The parade will start from the South Station, proceed to Lunghua and return through the Chinese territory.

The Parliamentarians now in Shanghai will hold a memorial service at the Great World Amusement Park beginning at 10 o'clock this morning in honor of the Republican heroes who fell for the cause.

A lantern procession will be held in the French Concession by shop keepers tonight beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

It was planned to hold a mass meeting at the Ho Chun Yin, Shanghai Barracks, this afternoon when several score of organisations would send representatives to adopt resolutions and launch a campaign of criticism against Tsao Kun. At a late hour last night, however it was learned that General Ho Feng-ling, the local Military Governor, had ordered the suppression of such a meeting on the ground that the territory under his jurisdiction is now under martial law. The police were ordered not to allow any gathering which might seem to tend toward disturbance of the peace.

Call To Arms Is Issued By Dr. Sun

An order for a punitive expedition against Tsao Kun has been issued by Dr. Sun Yat-sen as Generalissimo of the Republic of China, according to a telegram received here yesterday by Wang Ching-wei, personal representative of the Southern leader at Shanghai. The text of the telegram follows:

"I have issued an order today for the organisation of a punitive expedition against Tsao Kun and for the arrest and punishment of all Parliamentarians who participated in the election.

"I have also telegraphed to Marshal Tuan of Tientsin, Marshal Chang of Mukden and General Lu of Chekiang, inviting them to join me in the suppression of the enemy."

The telegram was under date of the 8th and is expected to have far-reaching effects in this part of China. Just exactly how Dr. Sun is planning to "suppress" the enemy is yet too early to predict, but if the three anti-Chihli leaders accept his invitation both Shanghai and Shanhaikwan might become important centers in the internal strife, being points of contact between Chihli and anti-Chihli influences.

Seventy-four parliamentarians met at the Hupeh Guild yesterday and issued a telegram, repudiating the authority of the Peking parliament to elect Tsao President and to promulgate a permanent Constitution for the country on the ground that they had accepted bribes.

(Eastern News Agency)

Mukden, Oct. 8.—In view of the fact that the autumnal manoeuvers of the Fengtien troops have brought forth rumors of the re-opening of hostilities between Fengtien and Chihli and for fear lest a serious effect should result, it has been decided that the manoeuvers will be conducted on a small scale.

In consequence, except the manoeuvers of four cavalry brigades of Fengtien and Heilungkiang Provinces in the neighborhood of Chaonan, those of the 27th Division and the 1st Division in the district of Chinchow have been suspended.

The rest of the troops have also decided to conduct their manoeuvers on a small scale in the places where they are stationed in order that misunderstandings on the part of the Chihli faction and the public may be averted. It is expected that these manoeuvers will be started on the 15th instant.

Yesterday two armed robberies were reported, raising the total for this year so far to 69, breaking all records.

Bluebeard's Eighth Wife

We welcome the Forbes-Russell Comedy Company.

Last night they opened up our theatrical season with one of London's latest successes. The play under notice was "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife."

I cannot admire on this occasion London's taste.

It isn't the sort of play that would find any appreciation with our Moral Welfare Committee, and if it comes to a fine point I doubt if it would find favor with any decently minded man or woman.

Yes, it is funny. It raises any amount of smiles, and many of the lines are particularly witty. But I had an idea that the insipid bedroom scene was a thing of the past, and that a stupid drunk, arrayed in pyjamas, had entirely been sent to oblivion.

In "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife" all the old ingredients were served up. There was an American who found it comparatively easy to get rid of seven wives, and when he essayed an eighth, she got it into her frivilous head that she would teach him a lesson. In other words the author produced an unpleasant theme, and endeavored to give it a moral twist to bring down a perfectly virtuous curtain.

"Bluebeard's Eighth Wife" is not the sort of play that I would like to take any of my friends to. Let the author twist as much as he likes at the end it doesn't save the play. It isn't savory. It isn't necessary to go into details here.

The play wasn't worthy of the players.

I am convinced that the Forbes Russell Company contain some excellent players. Four of them stood out last night in bold relief and did finely with the poor material at their disposal.

First of all there was Miss Nigna Lewis in the part of "Monna."

She is altogether excellent. She has a nice presence. She speaks well, and she knows how to act. When she is seen in a play like "Secrets" she will be appreciated as she thoroughly deserves to be. Then Mr. Beresford Lovett stands out as an experienced player. He has a distinct "Hawtrey" touch in his work. I liked the work of Mr. Guy Buckley. He had a very difficult scene in Act Three of the play. It was Hugh Wakefield who played the part at home, and he made his name with it. He was called out of the rut and placed among the headliners. Poor stuff to be carried upon! Buckley is good stuff, and we will be able to acknowledge his talents when we see him in another play.

The other part that calls for compliments is that of "Dupre," which was splendidly played by Mr. Norman Thompson. We have seen this clever character actor before, and can look forward to his appearance in other parts that will suit his undoubted ability.

Tonight "Bluebeard's Eight Wives" will be repeated.

On Thursday the play will be "Secrets." I think I can promise playgoers that they will see Miss Nigna Lewis at her best in this wonderful play.

It is altogether different to the stuff that we saw last night.

The company carry some fine traditions and the productions are little to quibble at.

License Aids Cupid To Find Way

Miss Dorothy Stewart.

CUPID smiled triumphantly when Dr. and Mrs. George David Stewart, prominent in New York society, announced the engagement of their eldest daughter, Miss Dorothy Irving Stewart, to Edward Hope Coffey, Jr., also of New York. Because Miss Stewart was only twenty and only recently a debutante, her father, who is President of the American Academy of Medicine and a renowned surgeon, told the young couple that there was plenty of time for their marriage and became quite emphatic about it. They thought the matter over, made a quiet trip to the Marriage License Bureau and showed their respective parents the license. Then parental consent was forthcoming. Coffey was a naval aviator during the war and is a Princeton graduate.

LONDON VIEWS FIRST FILM OF QUAKE IN JAPAN

Motion Pictures Of Disaster Rushed Across U. S. To Britain

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 8.—A 2,000 foot film of the Japanese earthquake was shown in London today to a small private audience, including the Japanese Ambassador. The film was taken in Tokio, left Yokohama on September 12, arrived at Victoria, B. C., on September 23, was taken to Chicago by aeroplane, arrived at New York on September 25 and reached England on board the s.s. Leviathan on Saturday. The Japanese Ambassador subsequently thanked the directors of the firm and expressed the opinion that they had performed a public service by enabling people to see what the disaster was like. Sir Edward Boyle said that the picture showed that the disaster could not be exaggerated and emphasised the need of supporting the Lord Mayor's Relief Fund. The picture will now be shown throughout the country.

charter of the vessels, and Kearny thought small repairs could be made in Gensan and the bigger repairs in Shanghai. Kearny did not seem to care whether the boats were repaired or not as long as they got to Shanghai. On May 28 witness went with Mr. Franklin to Seoull as interpreter. Mr. Franklin had several meetings with the American and Russian Consuls regarding the charter of the vessels. Mr. Franklin asked on which ship the arms were; this was at the Russian Consulate. It had been agreed previously between Kearny and Admiral Besoir that $14,000 Mex. per month should be paid for four ships—the Eldorado not being included. In the event of the money was not paid down at once, it was witness's duty to inform the Japanese authorities so that the latter could stop the ships.

About the middle of June Kearny arrived at Gensan on the Yungping and wired to Franklin, who was still at Seoull. Witness and Franklin then proceeded to Gensan, where witness was present at a conversation between Kearny and the Chief of Police. Kearny said he was authorised to act on behalf of the Chekiang Province to take the Russian refugees, and all their belongings, to that province, and to find them work there. The Chinese Vice-Consul also spoke with Kearny and said he had instructions not to allow Russian refugees to land in China.

Continuing Willemsen said that the Russians did not have a very good opinion of Kearny and that while he knew he had promised them work he didn't know how many were given jobs. The charter negotiations for four of the ships failed, he said, but he knew that the Eldorado had sailed for Shanghai with 1,400 rifles and 75,000 rounds of ammunition.

THE BOMBS

Mr. Edgar Twamley, Assistant Advertising Manager of The China Press, was the next witness called. He testified that Captain Kearny had called him on the telephone and requested him to put an advertisement reading: "Wanted, foreign chemist, good salary right man," in the China Press. The advertisement was in on May 11, 12 and 13, he said, and brought ten replies.

Mr. Franklin objected on the grounds that the evidence was immaterial and had no connection whatever with the overt act charged in the information. Mr. Husar asserted that it was highly probable it did have something to do with the overt act charged as Mr. Roth had testified that Mr. Franklin, Captain Kearny and others had suggested hiring a chemist to make gas bombs with which to bombard Shanghai from the air and capture the city for Governor Chang, who was to become President. Mr. Husar said he desired to corroborate Roth's testimony in addition.

Judge Lobingier over ruled the objection on the ground that it might be a step leading toward the sale of the arms and munitions to Governor Chang.

Lieut. Nikolai Wilgelminin, formerly with Admiral Stark's fleet and A.D.C. to Admiral Besoir, was the next witness called. He tesified that he had met George A Mayer at Gensan, Korea just after Easter and Mayer had asked whether it was possible to purchase the Russian ships then at Gensan and the arms and munitions they had abroad. He had referred him to Admiral Besoir concerning the ships and General Liebidoff and General Ivanoff concerning the arms he said. Later he went to Seoull and met Mayer and knew that Mayer had a conversation about arms with the two generals.

Wilgilmenin, continuing, said that he had seen the original of the list of arms passed between the Russians and Kearny's agents, and had assisted Lieut. Willemsen in deciphering and translating it from the Russian code into English. He identified the documents already in evidence.

Afterwards he came to Shanghai with Mayer and Willemsen. Mayer buying the tickets, and two weeks later met Captain Kearny at his office. The Captain asked him about the arms on board the ships, he said, but he was unable to give him any information. Kearny then gave him a job as navigating officer on board the Chekiang river police boat, Yung Ping, at a salary of $250 a month. He worked two months and was paid for one, he explained. While employed on the vessel they sailed to Korea.

NO SECRET

Everyone there knew that Kearny was buying the arms, he said, but on one occasion Captain Kearny had told him that Judge Franklin had no business with the arms, but was interested only in the ships.

On one occasion, he testified, Kearny had told him that General Gliebeff wanted too much money for the arms he had. He also testified that Kearny had told him he intended transferring the arms to the Yung Ping, if he bought any, but later knew that arms had been shipped to China on the Eldorado instead.

"Did Kearny say he was purchasing the arms for himself, for the Kearny Comapny, or for Chekiang?" Mr. Franklin asked in cross examination.

"He told me that an American firm in Shanghai had received a big concession in Chekiang and that the arms were to be used to arm the foreign police and soldiers," he answered.

THE ARREST

The next witness called was Dzung Ching-dang, a Chinese detective on the Municipal Police force. He testified that on July 4 Sub-Inspector Yorke had instructed him to go to Chinhai to make inquiries about Captain Kearny and about the Eldorada. He discovered that the ship had gone to Likong, he said, but could find no trace of Kearny. He returned, discovered that Kearny was on the Yung Ping, and then in company with U.S. Deputy Marshal Van Buskirk had gone to arrest Kearny. They were told, he said, that Kearny had gone but finally located him on the gunboat at Chinhai. He was, however, an advisor to the Civil Governor, the detective said, and it was very difficult to cause his arrest. He had reported, he continued, that he believed the Civil Governor was protecting Kearny.

The detective's testimony led to a hot fight between Mr. Husar and Mr. Franklin which ended when Judge Lobingier ruled that Civil Governor Chang had been named merely as the purchaser, not as an accomplice and was not on trial. It would be unfair, therefore, he added, to allow testimony to be introduced against him.

During the verbal excitement Mr. Husar asked Mr. Paul F. Faison, Mr. Franklin's associate, to get on the witness stand if he wanted to testify instead of making aside remarks.

"I'd like to see you on the stand," Mr. Husar said. "I'd like to ask you a couple of questions."

INTIMIDATION

Mr. Husar sprung a surprise on the court by calling Carroll V. Stein and Mrs. Elizabeth Stein to the witness stand next with the charge that Captain Kearny, through a man named Goodwin, had attempted to intimidate the witnesses for the government. Mr. Stein first gave some testimony concerning a conversation about arms which was, however, struck off the record on Mr. Franklin's contention that it had nothing to do with the case before the court.

Mr. Husar fought the ruling bitterly on the grounds that even though it had no direct bearing on the present case it was material testimony.

"We want to show," Mr. Husar declared, "that Kearny is not the innocent buyer of arms for the Chinese Government that he claims to be but is the wholesale gun-running business, selling arms and munitions under the cover of the Kearny Company, supposedly dealing in potatoes and whatnots—selling to anybody, including bandits, and buying everywhere and from anybody at any price."

Mr. Husar further asserted that the conversation referred to concerned a sale of arms by Kearny through Stein as agent to Chang Tso-lin.

"That's another case," Mr. Franklin said.

"Yes, and we may charge him yet," M. Husar retorted.

Mr. Stein then testified that he had met a man named Goodwin in the Asahi Bar who had warned him not to appear to testify in the Kearny case. Mayer, wouldn't be there he said because he might eat some rice that wouldn't agree with him. Goodwin also made a call at his home with John W. Maloney, he said, and made remarks concerning Mrs. Stein.

Mrs. Stein corroborated her husband's testimony and said that she had seen Goodwin riding in Kearny's car several times.

Mr. Franklin sought to throw out the testmony because it didn't connect up Kearny with the charges. Mr. Husar, however, contended that Goodwin was in no way implicated in the deal, but was a friend of Kearny's and it was only logical to assume that Kearny had instigated the attempted intimidation.

Following the testimony of Mr. and Mrs. Stein the prosecution rested and court adjourned shortly after noon until 3 o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION

At the resumption of the case yesterday afternoon Mr. Husar reopened the prosecution by calling Mr. and Mrs. Stein back to the witness stand. Mr. Stein testified that he had had a conversation in Mr. Franklin's office concerning the Kearny and Stein arms cases and that they had told him they were not worried about Roth but that Mayer knew a lot and it would be best to get him out of the way.

Mr. Faison, cross-examining, attacked the credibility of the witness by asking whether or not he had a case pending against him in the American court, whether he hadn't threatened to beat Mrs. Stein to death if she turned state's evidence, and whether he had been offered any reward for testifying. Mr. Stein answered no to all Mr. Falson's suggestions and Mrs. Stein, who is almost twice as large as Stein, burst out laughing at the insinuation that her husband was going to 'beat her up.'

Mrs. Stein testified that she had had a talk with Mr. Franklin concerning the case in which he suggested that it would be the better part of valor for them to get Willemsen out of town before the trial was held.

Mr. R. T. Peyton-Griffin, Official Court Reporter, was next called and testified that Captain Kearny had made a complaint to Mr. Husar in his presence that Stein had assaulted Goodwin. Mr. Husar contended that Mr. Peyton-Griffin's testimony was the connecting link showing that Kearny and Goodwin were close friends and that Goodwin was acting in his behalf.

ASKS DISMISSAL

When the prosecution finished Mr. Faison, for the defense, asked for a dismissal. Mr. Faison asserted that the prosecution had not produced sufficient testimony to convict Captain Kearny. Even the prosecution's witnesses, he declared, had testified that the arms, if they were purchased, were destined for the Civil Governor of Chekiang, a duly authorised Chinese official, to whom, under the Treaty of 1903, arms could be sold with immunity.

Mr. Husar contended that the government had made out a prima facie case, which was all that was necessary and declared that whether or not the Civil Governor had the authority to purchase arms was a matter of defense.

VERBAL BATTLE

It was then the verbal battle over the question of the burden of proof began that ended in the court's adjournment.

Mr. Franklin, for the defense, contended that the burden of proof was up to the prosecution. It was for the government to show, he said, that Governor Chang did not have the authority to purchase the arms, not the defense to prove the contrary. In support of his contention Mr. Franklin cited the preponderance of opinion in abortion cases in the United States, where, he said, the only legal authority to commit an abortion was the saving of the patient's life. In such cases the prosecution, he said, had to prove that the act was not committed to save the patient's life.

Mr. Husar defied Captain Kearny to bring in a single scintilla of evidence that he was authorised by Governor Chang to purchase arms.

"He can't do it," Mr. Husar asserted," and he knows it. He didn't have any authority. And that's only the primary issue. Even if he did have the authority did the Civil Governor of Chekiang have the authority. That fact is in his own peculiar knowledge and as such it is up to him to produce his authority or take the consequences."

Mr. Husar cited the Bowe case, in which he said the same point was raised, and which Judge Lobingier decided in his favor and against Mr. Franklin, in support of his contention.

Judge Lobingier, from the bench, said he was inclined to think that the point raised was analogous to the laws in the United States concerning selling liquor to minors. In such cases, he pointed out, the party who sells sells at his own peril. It was up to him, Judge Lobingier said, to make certain that the buyer was not a minor.

Mr. Franklin disagreed in favor of the question at issue as settled in the cited abortion cases and Judge Lobingier finally took the matter under consideration and adjourned the case until 10 o'clock this morning.

PRES. JEFFERSON BRINGS MAIL TOMORROW

President Taft Takes States Mail On Saturday

Following the arrival of the President Cleveland yesterday afternoon, the next mail from the States will arrive on the President Jefferson tomorrow, and mail for the States is to go on the President Taft next Saturday. The Cleveland is docked at the China Merchants' Central Wharf and will sail for Hongkong and Manila at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Jefferson, which was due here today, has been delayed in the Inland Sea owing to bad weather, and is now expected to dock at the China Merchants' Central Wharf about 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The liner is bringing 1,512 bags of mail, 8,500 tons of cargo and a full list of passengers for this port.

With the consignment of European mail that arrived on the P. and O. vessel Malwa yesterday morning, another batch will come on the French Mail boat Chili next Saturday. The Malwa, which docked at the Shanghai and Hongkew Wharf, will sail for Moji and Kobe on Saturday morning.

Taking mail for Europe, the M. M. steamer Cordillere will sail for Marseilles on Friday morning, and the tender with passengers for the liner will leave the Customs jetty at 9 o'clock. The Soudan of P. and O. is to leave for Bombay the same morning, and the outbound passenger tender will sail from the Customs jetty at 10:30 o'clock.

GIRL STRANGLED, THOUGHT SUICIDE SEEK HER LOVER;

What at first appeared to be a case of murder but later was fairly well established to have been one of suicide came to the attention of the police Sunday when a girl of 19, Wong Kwei-yuen, was found strangled in a house at 261 Pingliang Road. The body was seated upon a chair in the cook house of the establishment with a cord drawn tightly around the throat.

Investigation showed that the girl, who worked in one of the mills had last been seen in the company of one Sz Ong-nyi, a fellow worker and believed to have been her sweetheart, and it is thought that a quarrel with him led to suicide. The Assessor and Magistrate at the conclusion of the inquest yesterday held that death was probably self-inflicted, but that a final verdict would not be given until a statement had been obtained from Sz Ong-nyi.

It strongly recommends the prohibition of the demolition and reconstruction of houses in good or fair condition.

Another question of pressing importance is the creation of more central sites for business development, for it is a well-known fact that the military in Hongkong have a considerable area of land in the heart of the town which is not needed. The barracks and military establishments could be transferred to Kowloon and other places, and with this end in view the Government of Hongkong has been prevailing upon the Colonial Government in London to cause the removal of this serious obstacle to the proper development of the city. It would therefore seem that the question is in a fair way of being settled very shortly to the advantage of the mercantile community of Hongkong.

The Dog Watch

By Westa

A CORRESPONDENT in the interior who admits that he is a former sports writer who turned missionary thereby revealing that they don't examine very closely into the antecedents of candidates for the missionary profession writes in to protest against the recent strictures in this column on Coach Stagg's tirade on the evils of professionalised sport, and what the University of Chicago mentor calls the unwarranted publicity given to it by the newspapers.

This correspondent makes the mistake of assuming that Stagg's outburst was directed at those who seek to make professionals out of college football players; which happens to be a matter that the Chicago man did not touch upon in the article quoted. What Stagg did was to put the whole of professional sport in one category and damn all of it as a pernicious influence upon the lives of American youth. Further, he condemned the newspapers with an equal severeity because they gave space to the professionals which in his opinion could be devoted to the amateurs with greater ultimate advantage to the structure of American character and citizenship.

NOBODY, least of all this writer, would quarrel with Mr. Stagg or any other football coach who might take it upon himself to attack those who seek to professionalise college football players, particularly before their graduation. Any attack Mr. Stagg makes on those who strive to undermine the great American college game will be heartily approved by all right thinking Americans.

But Stagg does not confine himself to the arsurpers of football amateurism. On the contrary he attacks all professional sport as an evil in itself—professional baseball, boxing, racing, wrestling; in short all sports in which the participants receive money. And along with these evildoers he condemns the newspapers that give publicity to their activities.

FUNDAMENTALLY Mr. Stagg makes the mistake, quite common to those who view the whole field of modern athletics from an academic standpoint, of failing to realise that professional sport in America is not a sport at all, but a business. Professional baseball, for instance, has ceased to be a sport in the generally accepted meaning of that term, and has become, from the standpoint of the owners, an industry; and from the standpoint of the players, a profession.

The man who owns and operates a baseball franchise is in exactly the same category as the man who owns and operates a streetcar franchise, or any other public utility; or even in the same category as the man who operates a bank or a grocery store. He is engaged in the baseball industry, and is a business man, not a sportsman.

By the same token the professional baseball player of this day and age is really a practicioner in a profession, the same as a lawyer or doctor. It so happens that in the beginning baseball was a sport, pure and simple, and that those who indulged in it were sportsmen. If the profession of, say, dentistry, had started out as a sport, distinguished by tooth pulling races and bridge making competitions, with the participants actuated solely by a desire to excell in such matters with no thought of personal gain—if dentistry had started out on that basis in the beginning it would still be looked upon as a sport and all its nomenclature would belong to the language of athletics in accordance with its antecedents.

Baseball, unlike dentistry, did begin as a sport and the notion still persists that it continues to be a sport; whereas as a matter of fact it ceased long ago to be a sport insofar as its professional and commercial aspects are concerned, and became a business. The purveyors of professional baseball are in the entertainment business, exactly the same as the purveyors of theatrical productions, and the performers on the baseball diamond have the same relation to the public as performers on the stage.

REALLY, therefore, it is none of Mr. Stagg's business what the baseball owners or players do, any more than it is any of his business how the drygoods merchants in Chicago conduct their establishments. That is: it is no more his business than it is the business of any other individual member of the public, and when Stagg assumes to speak as an "authority" on the subject, or as one specially privileged because of his connection with an entirely different field of endeavor, namely, amateur athletics, why, he is simply talking through his well known hat.

And that applies equally to all professionalised sport. It is unfortunate, in a way, that there isn't a word to designate professionalised sport in a way that would make it stand out in the public mind as something separate and distinct from amateur sport, because it really is separate and distinct—totally unrelated except that its practicioners are recruited from the amateurs; a relationship that is no greater than that of dramatic amateurs to the professional stage.

If Mr. Stagg wishes to discuss professional sport, therefore, he should discuss it as a separate entity. If he thinks it has a bad influence upon the youth of the land that is his privilege, and if he can find a newspaper willing to let him voice his opinions in its columns nobody will complain.

But when he undertakes to say that professional sport is injurious to the athletic amateurs and gives no further reason than that "it is because I say it is" he puts himself in exactly the same category as the man who goes about, utterly without reason, to whisper scandal against his neighbors.

NIGHT FOOTBALL

Johns Hopkins University Will Try It Out

(Exclusive China Press)

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 8.—Johns Hopkins University is planing to hold night football games this season under flood-light so brilliant as to make the playing field as bright as at noonday. The first night game is to be played here on the evening of October 20th.

Athletic authorities at Johns Hopkins believe that night football is both possible and practicable.

The concern which will install the lights on the playing field claim that the spectators will be able to follow the play no matter how high the ball is kicked and that it will not even be necessary to whiten the ball.

Yachts In Exciting Race For Vice-Commodore's Cup

The race for the Vice-Commodore's Cup on Sunday last provided the members of the Shanghai Yacht Club with one of the best day's racing they have enjoyed this season. The wind blew a whole sailing breeze from the N.N.E., force 4, practically throughout the day.

Six boats crossed the starting line at 9.30 a.m., the Haven and the Violet being first over, closely followed by the Oistos and the Viking, the Ella and the game little Mayfly being some distance astern.

The Courrse was up-river, to the first measured mile posts in the Seven Mile Reach and return, a distance of 26 miles, under seated handicaps made up by the Vice-Commodore.

The outward half of the race was a run before the wind and the Violet, sailed by Mr. J. E. R. Harris, quickly took the lead, closely followed by the Haven, her owner, Mr. H. E. Middleton, being at the tiller. After passing through the junk anchorage spinnakers were set. The crew on the Violet were slow for whereas they should have had theirs out first they were in fact the last to do so.

The boats continued up river in a procession, in the order of starting, bowling along at a rare speed, until the end of the reach above High Bank. Here a very smart change from spinnaker to balloon jib on the part of the crew of the Haven enabled her to pass the Violet and take the lead, which she maintained for the remainder of the race.

The finish was one of the closest and most exciting of the season, the Haven being first to cross the line in 1 hour 32 mins. 10 secs. remarkable time for a run of 13 miles for a boat of her type. She was followed by the Violet one second later, with the Viking two seconds behind her. It was a great finish.

The return race was a rather different story. This was also started very satisfactorily by the skipper of the schooner Elka at 2.30 p.m. By this time the tide had turned and wind against tide gave promise of a nasty sea for the beat back to Shanghai. All the yachts put in one or more reefs in anticipation of heavy weather but the Haven soon found that not only could she do without her's but she could carry her main-topsail as well.

The Haven got by far the worst of the start. All the other competitors kept close to the windward shore, but her skipper, thinking to get more of the first of the ebb tide, stood off towards the Shanghai side off the river, overlooking the fact that this was the lee shore and he would be unable to get through the reach without tacking. This error in judgment cost him several minutes and put the Haven at the tail end of the race. She quickly recovered her position, however, passing the Ella, sailed by Mr. P. A. MacTiernan, in the reach above High Bank. Mr. Frank Gates' Oistos twice ran aground in the Arsenal Reach and here the Haven passed her also, gaining rapidly on the Violet. These two yachts had a grand race together right down to the bottom of the junk anchorage, where the Haven was within an ace of passing the Violet. Here, however, the Violet, pointing much closer than the Haven, managed to shake off her pursuer, the Haven being obliged to make an extra tack to clear the last lot of junks, which enabled the Violet to slip away from her.

But what of the Viking all this time? Making a welcome first appearance in this season's races she sailed like a witch, the conditions suited her admirably and her skipper, Mr. V. O'Kane, got every ounce out of her. She ran into the lead right at the start and was never challenged, finishing 12 minutes 40 seconds ahead of the Violet which in turn crossed the line 2 mins. 10 secs. ahead of the Haven.

The opening of the handicaps disclosed the Haven to be the winner by 5 mins. 12 secs. from the Viking, the full results being as follows:

RESULTS

		Elapsed times h. m. s.	Handicaps h.m.s.	Corrected times h.m.s.	Position
HAVEN	Out	1.32.09
	Home	2.32.10
		4.04.19	0.30.00	3.34.19	1.
VIKING	Out	1.32.12
	Home	2.17.20
		3.49.32	0.10.00	3.39.32	2.
OISTOS	Out	1.37.40
	Home	2.39.20
		4.17.00	0.18.00	3.59.00	3.
VIOLET	Out	1.32.10
	Home	2.30.00
		4.02.10	Scratch	4.02.00	4.
ELLA	Out	1.38.00
	Home	2.42.05
		4.20.05	0.15.00	4.05.05	5.
MAYFLY	Out	1.49.20
	Home	3.40.20
		5.20.40	1.00.00	4.29.40	6.

While it must be conceded that on the day's performances the handicaps given to the Viking and the Haven were too liberal, but had the former started from scratch and the latter had her handicap reduced by half, the result of the race would have been the same.

A word must be said for the Little Mayfly, most sportingly sailed by her owner, Mr. W. C. Woodfield. She quickly dropped too far astern for it to be seen how she fared and it was quite dark when she crossed the finishing line but it is obvious that she was very much under handicapped for the weather conditions which prevailed.

ENGINEERS BODY CLOSES SESSION HELD IN TSINGTAU

The annual fall convention of the Association of Chinese and American Engineers, just closed at Tsingtau was voted by the returning Shanghai members one of the most successful meetings they have ever attended. About eighty members from all parts of China were treated to an interesting week in which the time between technical addresses was devoted to visiting points of engineering interest, sightseeing, and other forms of entertainment.

The convention was opened on Wednesday, October 3, with an address by the retiring president Dr. Yen Te-ching; followed by instructive papers and much spirited discussion.

The papers presented at this session were "The Relation of Forests to Destructive Waters in the Light of Scientific Investigation," by D. Y. Lin, forestry expert to the Shantung government; "Railway Sleepers," by F. H. Clerk, adviser to the Ministry of Communications; and "Tsingtau, its Roads and Sewerage" by Teng En-hang, Director of the Public Works Department of Tsingtau.

The afternoon was spent in an inspection of the wharves and railway workshops, among the finest in China, followed by moving pictures of the recently completed yellow River diversion project. In the evening the members were entertained at an elaborate Chinese dinner given by the officials of the Kiao Tsi Railway in the benquet hall of the Bank of China building. The visiting ladies were entertained by the wives of the Tsingtau members.

The second day opened with papers by P. Y. Tsai on "The Peking Tramways" P. H. Chen on "The Kiaotsi Railway Bridges" and I. H. Pei on "The Tsingtau Waterworks" all subjects of the most timely interest. All of the papers will appear in the monthly journal of the Association.

At the business meeting which followed officers were elected for the ensuing year. They are President, T. S. Sun, Vice Minister of Communication, first vice-president, C. J. Carroll, of Hankow; second vice-president, F. K. Sah, of Tsingtau; Treasurer, H. A. Raider, of Tientsin; Directors: K. T. Tsai, C. Y. Wang, E. F. Wei, P. P. Whitham, J. A. Collins, F. M. Titus.

The afternoon of Thursday was spent in visiting the wireless station, forts, and other points of interest, ending up at the beautiful and extensive public gardens, where the Vice-Governor entertained the members at tea.

The banquet held at the Grand Hotel was attended by 100 members and guests and was followed by a most enjoyable dance.

The meeting was concluded on Friday by an all-day motor trip to the famous mountain resort of Laoshan.

The pleasurable impression brought away by the visiting members was due to the perfectly ordered arrangements for their entertainment and instruction on the part of the local Tsingtau Committee, headed by F. K. Sah, Chief Engineer of the Kiaotsi Railway. The great interest recently attaching to Tsingtau as well as the matchless beauty of its harbor, parks, and roads made its choice a happy one for this convention.

Members are already looking forward to the next convention, to be held in April. Tangshan with its vast mines, mills, and railway shops is freely mentioned as the probable meeting place.

Half-Penny A Mile Flying In Britain

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 8.—What the papers describe as "Halfpenny-a-mile flying" is being tested at Lympne this week. Fourteen British, two Belgian and two French machines with engine-power limited to 7½ h.p., some of which can be purchased for £200, are being flown by famous pilots in competition for various prizes for speed, altitude and distance. The principal prize is one of £500, offered by the Duke of Sutherland, for the longest flight with a minimum of 50 miles on a gallon of petrol. The conditions at the start were ideal. Six machines this morning easily exceeded the 50 mile a gallon minimum. Gusty winds this afternoon ended the flying.

RADICALS PLAN BIG BATTLE AT LABOR MEETING

Bitter Debates Are Forecast At Convention At Portland

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Portland, Ore., Oct. 8.—A decisive struggle between the radicals and the conservatives in the American Federation of Labor is scheduled to be staged this week in a series of debates beginning tomorrow over the questions of recognition of the Soviet Russian government by the United States, the organisation of one big union, in accordance with the I. W. W. ideal, and joining in a labor party movement in politics.

The recent defeat of the radicals in the labor federation and the general disapproval of soviet methods has caused a renewed activity among the radical leaders in the organisation.

The defeat of the radical elements on each of the planks which it proposes is generally predicted, but their withdrawal from the ranks of the American Federation of Labor may follow.

Accused Gendarme Admits Slayings

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, Oct. 8.—The trial of the murder case called against Captain Amakasu and Sergeant Major Mori was opened today at the Military court of the First Division.

Crowds of people, seeking admission to the court, began gathering at 9 p.m. last night and by 5 a.m. all of the admission-tickets had been given out. The military authorities despatched a company of soldiers to guard the court-martial.

Upon the commencement of the trial, Captain Amakasu, in reply to questions put to him by the judicial officer in charge, clearly acknowledged the crime as it was recorded in the minutes of the proceedings at the preliminary examination.

GREEK BAKER IS FINED FOR FAILING TO WRAP BREAD

J. Passikides, Greek baker, 775a Broadway, was fined $15 by Assessor Allman and Magistrate Li in the Mixed Court yesterday for delivering unwrapped bread.

The defendant should have appeared last Tuesday but failed to do so and a warrant was issued. Sanitary Inspector Howard testified that he found a cart of the defendant's full of bread which was unwrapped and was in charge of a coolie whose hands were very dirty. The defendant pleaded that the consignment was being sent in bulk to a company of 100 Russians in Haskell Road and said that since the occurrence mentioned he had been wrapping the loaves separately.

Diphtheria—How It May Be Avoided

Diphtheria is usually contracted when the child has a cold. The cold prepares the child's system for the reception and development of the diphtheria germs. When there are cases of diphtheria in the neighborhood children that have colds should be kept at home and off the street until recovered. Give them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and they will not have to remain at home long. It also cleans out the culture beds, which form in a child's throat when it has a cold, and minimizes the risk of contracting infectious diseases. For sale Everywhere.

Asia Banking Corporation

October 9, 1923.

Spot bar silver was down 1-8d and forward 3-16d. in London yesterday. The New York price was unchanged and the London-New York cross rate improved to 455½.

The only changes in our official quotations here today were a drop in the Franc rate to 1160 and in the Rupee rate to 223¼.

Our market here today was steady with not a great deal of business passing as owing to the holiday tomorrow there was a general disinclination to operate extensively.

While at one time business in Sterling was done at 3-0¾ for October delivery and 3-0-11-16 for November-December. There were always good sellers at these rates.

In the afternoon the market steadied up and at the close there were sellers of Sterling at 3-0 7-8 Oct. delivery, 3-0-13-16 Nov. and 3-0¾ December.

There were sellers of Gold Dollars at the close at 70 for near and forward deliveries and sellers of Yen at 69 7-8.

Banks were quoting 3-1½, 71-½ and 1210 for Sterling, Gold Dollar and Franc bills respectively.

India and China both sold silver in London yesterday and the market is reported as closing steady. New York report their market also as steady.

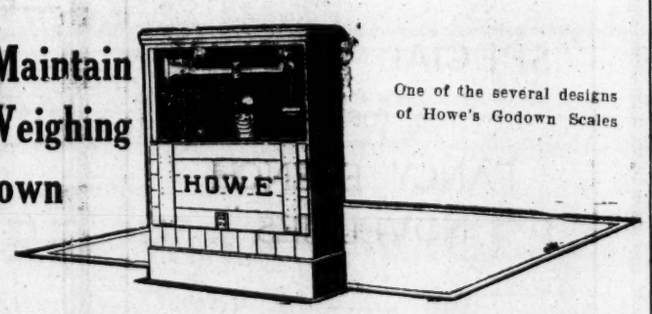
How to Maintain Accurate Weighing in the Godown



One of the several designs of Howe's Godown Scales

The best means known to secure and retain a sensitive balancing point is the use of the knife edge pivot. Chemists use an agate edge for weighing minute particles.

Howe's Godown Scales

have a steel knife edge. To maintain accuracy this must be protected as it is impossible to get accurate weight unless the knife edge pivot is sharp and smooth.

A Special Device

of balls moving in scientific shaped cups, allows movement in all directions and minimizes friction or scraping on the knife edge pivot, even when heavy loads are carelessly dropped on the platform. Thus absolute accuracy is maintained for years.

Every Morning at Breakfast take a draught of SANATOGEN
This will give you that extra nerve-energy which makes you feel "fit" and fresh all day and it will save you from Heat prostration

SANATOGEN in the morning means a better day's work—means that you feel brighter, fresher, and keener all day, in spite of the exhausting heat, while your powers of resistance to typhoid, cholera, dysentery and nervous disorders will be enormously increased.

TRY IT!

SANATOGEN'S power to increase nerve-energy has been definitely proved, in the words of Sir Charles A. Cameron. C.B., M.D., etc. President of the Royal Institute of Public Health:—

Sanatogen is an excellent nerve-food of the highest nutritive value, easily and completely digested.

GET A BOTTLE TO-DAY
ALL CHEMISTS SELL SANATOGEN

Never forget that Sanatogen is a food, not a medicine or a "secret remedy." It increases nerve-energy by feeding the nerves—not by goading them with drugs or stimulants. Its action is as natural as that of any ordinary food: it must do good, and it cannot do harm. That is why doctors give it even to babies. And that is why so many Europeans in the East take Sanatogen regularly, all the year round—not as an occasional "tonic," but as a part of their daily diet. You should do likewise, if you want to keep your nerve-energy at the highest pitch, and to avoid the debilitating effects of the great heat

Trying To Simplify Simplicity

THE latest attempt to "popularise" the Bible, or at any rate the New Testament, by rendering it into "a simple, modern style of English, understandable to the average American reader," is doubtless made with the best of motives and with an abundance of scholarly authority. Yet if the published excerpt is a fair sample, the result will certainly incur the reproach of those who strive to "gild refined gold."

Thus, in the familiar story of the feeding of the multitude, the inquiry of the disciples: "Whence should we have so much bread in the wilderness?" is transformed into "Where can we get bread enough in this solitude?" Now "solitude" is a good old classical synonym for "wilderness," used by Tacitus in a familiar passage. But to suggest that it is thus used in "the everyday language of American life," or that to substitute "solitude" for "wilderness" is simplification, is absurd. We should say, on the contrary, that such use of the word is decidedly unusual, and is likely to strike the "average American reader" as pedantic. So "a few little fishes" in the King James version is no less simple and actually more in accord with common usage than the "few small fish" of the "simplified" text. Nor can we perceive that "He commanded the multitude to sit down on the ground" is the least bit simplified or made more understandable by transmogrifying it into "He ordered the people to take their places on the ground."

The fact is that the standard version of the New Testament is conspicuous above most other books for the simplicity and clarity of its style. It is written in "the common language of everyday life." You may read chapter after chapter without coming upon one unusual or obscure word. It is quite safe to say that in the whole long chapter from which the quoted example is taken there is not a word that would seem to the average reader so unusual in its use as the "solitude" which the simplifying translator would substitude for "wilderness."

TWILIGHT

So evening falls—
As still as death-lights droop
in old men'es eyes—
Mysterious with longing and surmise,
And sad as dust that clings to ancient walls.

A white cloud swings
Serenely homeward to the faltering west,
As night's cool hands anoint a
robin's breast
With oils that drip with fluted echoings.

Now near, now far,
Wild hawks spin raucous circles overhead;
But chicks beneath their mother wings are spread,
In sleep, while wakes the gallant evening star.

For summer sprays the loam
With kisses intimately warm,
to press
Her seal of love upon earth's loveliness.
While, hand in hand,
Down through the emerald
painted evening land,
A boy and girl are slowly walking home.

The Monroe Doctrine In History

In his adiress delivered before the American Bar Association in Minneapolis Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes no doubt succeeded, as he sought, in making much clearer to the thought of the people of the world the true significance of that famous declaration made a hundred years ago by President James Monroe, and since referred to as the Monroe Doctrine. He traced its inception, by a sort of naturally evolutionary process begun as far back as the year 1820, when the welfare of the colonies in Latin America which had thrown off the Spanish yoke became a matter of deep concern to the Government and people of the United States. Against the formidable aggression of the Holy Alliance formed by the sovereigns of Austria, Prussia, and Russia, in an effort to "put an end to the system of representive government" and to restore the lost colonies to Spain, there was informal agreement between Great Britain and the Washington Government that they "could not see with indifference any portion of them transferred to any other power."

Assured of the moral support of Great Britain, which, however, at the time had not recognised the new states in Spanish America, President Monroe, in his message of Dec. 2, 1823, made a formal declaration of the American policy. Everyone is more or less familiar with the wording of the clauses which are today quoted as the text of the Monroe Doctrine, but Mr. Hughes, conscious of misapprehension that still exists in some parts of the world regarding the true intent and purpose of the declaration, now indelibly fixed as a governing and controlling policy of the United States in its relations with all other nations, took pains to elucidate, with great clarity, its historical application and its wisely unselfish purpose. "Properly understood," he says, " it is opposed (1) to any non-American action encrpaching upon the political independence of American states under any guise, and (2) to the acquisition in any manner of the control of additional territory in this hemisphere by any non-American power."

There, briefly and concisely stated, are the terms of the famous pronouncement. It is explained that it is not a legislative enactment, but that it has been approved by Congress. While it has not been defined by treaty and does not draw its force from international agreement, it has had the implied indorsement of the treatymaking power in the reservations to two Hague conventions, those of 1899 and 1907. But it is more than all these. In the language of Mr. Hughes, it is this:

It is a policy declared by the Executive of the United States and repeated in one form and another by presidents and secretaries of state in the conduct of our foreign relations. Its significance lies in the fact that in its essentials, as set forth by our responsible statesmen, it has been for 100 years, and continues to be, an integral part of our national thought and purpose, expressing a profound conviction which even the upheaval caused by the Great War, and our participation in that struggle upon European soil, has not uprooted or fundamentally changed.

When it is remembered that the Monroe Doctrine neither approves nor defends any policy of aggression, but that it asserts in calm and dispassionate language the reasonable right of self-defense, and that its sole purpose is to protect the weak against the selfish aggression of the strong, the conviction is unavoidable that it must endure. No man-made law or policy could be more firmly and securely grounded. Surely if it was once, as Mr. Hughes declares, an integral part of the national thought and purpose of the people of the United States, it must so remain.

MR. ROTH'S EXPOSE

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Dear Sir.—With much regret I read in your esteemed paper that "Roth informed the U. S. Authorities re the Kearny Case after he was dismissed."

This is not correct; I informed Mr. Husar before I had any knowledge of being dismissed; and when I returned from Nagasaki I found a letter stating my services were no longer required. This was in June, and the exposure of this deal was in May.

Trusting you will publish this correction to make the truth clear to your many readers. Yours very truly, Louis Frank Roth.

EARTHQUAKE REFUGEES

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Sir: I should be glad if you would please notify all persons making personal appeals to the local newspapers for assistance on the plea that they are refugees from Japan, that assistance will be willingly rendered, so far as funds permit, from the money now in the possession of the Foreign Earthquake Refugees Committee.

As you will realise, appeals for the benefit of individuals through the columns of newspapers are liable to mislead the public as to the distribution of funds and supplies and might be made use of by unscrupulous individuals to obtain relief from many sources at the same time, thus stultifying the efforts of the Committee to assist only genuine cases. It is absolutely essential that every inquiry should be made, before relief is given and with the experience already gained the Committee feel that individuals requesting assistance should be closely examined before being taken seriously except where they are known or can produce proof that the earthquake was actually the cause of their misfortunes.

Personal application should be made to the B. W. A., 12 Kiukiang Road.

Ho Tung's Round Table

BY DR. GILBERT REID
In International Journal

Some weeks ago, when it was first announced that Sir Robert Ho Tung was proposing a new plan to bring about peace and unification in China, this Journal looked somewhat askance at the proposal, for the simple reason that the conference was to be called together by certain members of the diplomatic Corps. This particular idea has since been discarded, and Sir Robert Ho Tung is himself undertaking to bring about such a conference, and has already arived in Shanghai for this purpose. Hence we now join with others in commending both the motives and the plan of the proposers. The main object in mind should be approved by all. In fact most of the leaders of China have expressed their approval. Some have promised to attend the conference in person, and some will send delegates. Only a few stand aloof. October 10, one of China's national holidays, is mentioned as the time for the first meeting, and Shanghai the place.

Previous conferences for peace have been held without results. If this particular conference is to be successful, it must avoid the dangers that befell the others. Some lessons can be learned from the Washington Conference. A few suggestions are here offered.

First, those who meet in conference should be mutually respectful and under no circumstance should indulge in personal abuse or disorderly opposition to one another. The rules of parliamentary usage should be known and observed. A conference to consider peace should still more be peaceably conducted. Attacks and harsh criticism in such a gathering should give place to words of commendation where such is possible.

Secondly, those matters on which agreement can be easily reached should be considered first, and points more difficult of solution be left for later discussion or perhaps be laid aside entirely. If a question arises leading to acrimonious debate, it should at once be laid on the table. The Washington Conference, for example, managed to reach unanimous agreement on the question of naval strength: but not on questions of the army, air explosives and submarines. It is now proposed that second conference be called to settle these latter matters. It is not stated what Sir Robert Ho Tung has in mind as worthy of first consideration. If no mistake is made in the initial stage, the rest will follow easily.

Thirdly, in large gatherings it must not be expected that all can have the same ideas. One must learn to listen quietly to an expression of another's ideas. Man may differ, but not wrangle. Those who are friends are not all alike. A friendly feeling should exist amid differences. Confucius has said that the princely man is in harmony with others with whom he may differ, but the man of small mind looks for agreement rather than harmony. All religions and all nations have their differences and boundaries, but these should not stand in the way of universal peace and brotherhood. In this particular conference one set of men may urge a strong central government, and other argue for self-government. There is reason with both sides, and because of reason they should be in accord. The United States has forty- eight States, but they are loyal to the one Union. This peace conference should not end in a quarrel and a riot Fourthly, the main work in large assemblies is done in small committees, who bring in reports to the whole body. They Chinese have never been accustomed to the ways of large gatherings, but know how to confer together in small groups. While it is well to have many represented in this national peace conference, it will be wise to dissolve into separate bodies to consider separate topics. These smaller bodies can invite persons from the outside to give their views and impart information. In this way no one need feel slighted.

In a word, those who compose this conference should avoid dangers to failure. They should cast aside suspicions and be determined to remain friends, as citizens of one commonwealth. They should slip over small differences and come to the great object for which the conference is called. Sir Robert Ho Tung has had wide experience, is advanced in years, has no need of money and is sincerely devoting himself to the highest interests of the land of his fathers. It is better to try to do something than to sit by and ridicule. May he have success!

The Way Of A Will

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

Most of us inherit from our parents only ourselves and their good precepts.

If we are uncommonly wise and fairly fortunate, we pass our selves along similarly to the next generation.

To most of us, therefore, a last will and testament has only academic interest, except as we read of one being contested in the courts or of another as it proves peculiar to print.

Such a one was recently printed after the death of Rabbi Joseph Krauskopf, of Philadelphia, long among the leading ministers of the country, recognised among the best of Jews in religion and patriotically as a most fervent American.

When Dr. Krauskopf's will was probated, it was found to contain the following suggestive clauses:

"I have no wordly goods to bequeath you, my children . . I believe I have done my full duty toward you in having afforded you a good education and in having set before you the example of a life consecrated to labor and to earnest striving after the highest ideals . . .

"Too often have I seen a father's fortune become the undoing of his children . . .

"The consciousness that whatever fortune you shall have or whatever honorable position you shall occupy is of your making will some day become to you a source of supreme satisfaction."

Now, there's a will with a way to it that makes each of us the Rabbi's beneficiary.

Certainly its appeal is democratic and personal. It surely talks up to one's self-respect to be told that whatever one has or does is of one's own making.

Any rich man's son will tell you—if his inherited wealth has not benumbed his intelligence—what a handicap is the money thus acquired.

Such a one, if he knows other values than those of money, is likely to seek the opportunity of working his way up from the bottom.

And usually that process achieves his redemption, saves him from the curse of inherited wealth.

For work is the health of life.

The fashion is growing to regard wealth as a stewardship.

Nor is this a superficial fashion, like a change in the styles of clothes. But it is a fashion that is fruitage of the Tree of Democracy.

It springs from the knowledge that wealth—coming from the people, borrowed as it were from the common wealth—should return to the people whence it came.

Similarly, the democratic spirit produces in the average of us a self respect that makes us envious of wealth and independence of riches.

All we ask is health and opportunity, and we work on with a will and in our own way, winning dividends of sastisfaction from tasks when done, and able to look every man in the face and tell him—

Well, why say anything but: "Here's my hand, fellow worker"

Longevity And The Duty Of Science

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

I was talking the other night with a speculative philosopher, some of whose ideas I have mentioned in a former article, about the prolongation of the span of human life, for which the life insurance companies are claiming great credit and from which they must derive much profit.

"That these companies should wish to curtail mortality among the insured persons on their books," said he, "is perfectly understandable. And it might not be easy to find any individual, whether insured or uninsured, who would not welcome an extension of the life span for himself and for his family and friends. But when the principle is applied to everybody, while the birth rate remains undiminished, the final result must be a crowding such as the world has never yet dreamed of.

"Only an increase of scientific knowledge can make such a state of affairs endurable. Science has produced this prolongation of life, but science cannot stop there, resting on its laurels, for now it must shoulder the burden of providing sustenance out of the natural resources of the earth for the hundreds of millions of additional mouths to be fed. Man is a very expensive animal for Nature to maintain.

"On her own revenues she cannot afford to keep him in very large numbers. Witness the sparse population of this country, even in its most fertile regions, in the days of the Indians. And the same applies to all parts of the earth in its ages of savagery and barbarism.

"Before the birth of modern science the population of Europe was relatively small. And whenever it rose above a certain moderate limit, famines and pestilences came to sweep off its surplusage. Human science gradually advancing has manipulated the revenues of the earth so that they now suffice to maintain this extravagant creature in vastly increased numbers. But let scientific knowledge fail and famine and plague would instantly stalk in to such a feast as was never yet set before them. It is an undefined consciousness of continuing crisis that is bringing science to the fore in all our schools. We have struck the pace, and science alone can enable us to hold it, or to quicken it. We all feel that nature says to us: 'If you will multiply like that you must find your own living; I can't support you.'"

"But, aren't you rather pessimistic," I said.

"Not a bit," he replied. "What is life worth without strees, effort, and a sense of wideawakeness! Let us extend the average length of life to a hundred years and at the same time quadruple the population of the globe. There, that's a problem worthy of the utmost powers of the scientific spirit, which has been analytic long enough and must now turn more to synthesis, or in other words, become creative.

"Some persons," I remarked, "would not thank science for prolonging life, since they believe that this life is only a step toward a better one."

"Such persons," said he, "should rather consider that the foundations of the other life are laid in this one. I am not one of those who think that we come trailing clouds of glory from a preceding exstence. But I believe that the birth of the individual spirit follows upon the body's birth, and is a consequence of the development of the body and especially of the brain, as I told you the other night when you were so sleepy.

"The delicate nervous organization of the brain may constitute an attractive center around which the elements that form the spirit gather. Haven't you a feeling that you (the entity that you call yourself), are seated in your head, while all the other members of the body are your temporary servants and instruments? Since, then, by prolongation of the physical life the association of the spirit with the brain is also prolonged, it is fair to assume that the spirit may thereby gain some advantage that will be of use to it and help it to maintain its individuality after separation from the body.

"So, too, the character of the life passed in the physical body may impress a force and direction of development upon the spirit which will be continued after the separation. I am willing to live as long as I continue to feel that the spirit which is my real self grows stronger from its present associations and training."

ONCE OVERS

Balance Work And Play And Don't Over Do Either

To be so tired and worn out that you must allow yourself more rest in your free hours is nothing to worry about.

It is a good thing to be tired and realise it and take the needed rest.

You know that between your work and the energy you often expend in your favorite line of amusement, you have gone for weeks, just dragging yourself about.

The excitement of your play, kept you going at high speed, but as this excitement is lacking in your work you have lagged on the job.

If a time comes when you must do less play in order to get the required rest to keep up with the job you have, it is a good thing.

"When nature warns one must heed," is the maxim you had better follow.

You run at too high speed anyway—most people do.

It is no particular credit to you that you are nervous and restlessly active on the job or away from it.

But it would be creditable to see you using your head sufficiently to balance work and play and not overdo either.

After-The-War Manners

By Arono Dosch-Fleurot

There is a certain decay of manners in Europe, incident, no doubt, to the general upheaval.

I was in a moving picture house in Berlin. Nearby was a German lady and an English friend to whom she was translating the captions into English in a low voice. Her neighbor on the other side objected, saying it interfered with his enjoyment of the incidental music, which was, incidentally, a mediocre production in a city where good music is to be had every night. She explained why she was translating, but the man next her called the usher and complained. The usher advanced brusquely and said literally:

"If you do not shut up I shall throw you out."

I laid it to Berlin, but I was punished for it. I had occasion to go to Vienna about this time, and Vienna is my favorite city. Vienna is gentle and well bred and its people are habitually considerate in their dealings one with another. In Vienna I am always on my guard not to offend some one's sensibilities. Even street car conductors, telephone operators and shop girls receive the courtesy which rarely is accorded them elsewhere. But in my beloved Vienna I received the worst shock.

It was in a church, too. Or, rather in the crypt under a church. I wanted to see the ancestral burying crypt of the Hapsburgs under the old Capucine Church on the Neuer Markt. It is one of the ordinay spots visited by tourists, so I went through with a "caravan." My purpose in visiting it was as easily accomplished in the crowd.

A young monk led us down the stairs and, in the first moment in the midst of the formidable array of dead and gone Hapsburgs, all in their enormous lead coffins, there was a low subdued murmur in the crowd of thirty. Suddenly the young priest turned and screamed:

"Silence. I alone speak."

In the crowd was an Italian family who knew no German, and the two young girls of the family giggled.

"If I hear one more sound from you," screamed the young Capucine, "I shall throw you all out."

His tone was offensive beyond measure and he used exactly the same words as the movie usher in Berlin. "Ich schmeisse sie hinaus." "Throw you out on your neck," would be about it in English."

I got even with one rude man. It was in a German dining car. The train was jammed and all day long the waiters were running like mad. I was admiring their memories and agility as well as their endurance when a sour individual took the seat opposite. He had to have immediate attention. He made the waiters drop what they were doing to meet his wants; he complained about everything he received. They kept their tempers admirably, but there was no satisfying him. He made them nervous and jumpy, but did not succeed in deranging their perfect courtesy. Finally he cried ou that their service was so bad he was going to report them. So he took one of his own cards, which indicated he was the director of a factory, and, writing out a complaint, put it into the sealed complaint box that hung in the car. The poor waiters were distressed, but there was nothing to do. So I broke my rule of never causing or mixing in a public quarrel. I took one of my cards, wrote upon it: "The man sitting opposite me who just made an unjust complaint against the service in this car is the crankiest man I have ever met." I showed it to him and put in into the box. He took it sitting down. I was not a waiter hence not helpless and afraid of my job. I was so pleased at being able to get even with him that I do not mind boasting of it.

These are incidents that have been impressed upon me the last few days. Formerly one's public contacts were agreeable. In Germany, for instance, I have spent half the time since the end of war practically without any unpleasant contact. Is its Old World courtesy going to break under the strain?

Germany has one piece of unconscious bad manners. Or perhaps it is not bad manners, because it is universal and accepted. I refer to eating sandwiches on all occasions and in all places, especially at the opera. I must admit, though, they are usually neat sandwiches, with the edges trimmed, and go down in three or four healthy bites without leaving any ragged edges. As they are invariably made from sausage, there is never a meat chewing scene.

The first time I ever saw sandwich eating en masse was at the Berlin opera just after the war. I remember the orchestra looked lean and starved but played marvellously. They were playing Rosenkavalier and Strauss was conducting.

The moment the curtain went down, with the delicate strains of the fanciful music still in the air, the entire audience lifted a sandwich to its face. I could have understood the orchestra doing it, but the audience did not look starved.

The explanation given is that the lack of fats during the war left an unsatisfied feeling, so people had to take sandwiches with them.

But I once saw a sandwich scene that pleased me mightily. It was at the production of "Reigen," Schnitzler's unconventional play. Knowing what the play was about I went alone, so I could blush by myself. Beside me was a very citizen in a tail coat.

"Regien" had just come from Vienna, which has not the sandwich habit, and, as it is composed of ten short scenes, the pause was made only between the sixth and seventh acts, a little late for the sandwich eaters. For Berlin it had better have come after the third. So thought my neighbor, evidently. When the third scene ended and the lighs remained dim he took out his watch and noted the sandwich hour had arrived. But the piquant play took up its next unconventional scene oblivious of the needs of the audience.

At the end of the fourth scene my neighbor asked me when there would be a pause. From the program I was able to inform him the "grosse pause" would be after the sixth entertaining, if not altogether correct, little scenes. He smoothed his stomach and waited nervously. I could see he was not half taking in the play. I felt as if it were almost a duty to recall him from his revery.

Hardly had the fifth little scene ended when he reached into the pocket of his tail coat where he had his sandwich concealed and pulled it out. He had evidently been restraining himself from doing so earlier. With his other hand he pulled out his watch again. When the curtain went up he put his watch back, but half a minute later he had it out again, and all during the sixth scene, which is very piquant, a scene he would have enjoyed immensely if there had only been a pause after the third scene, his whole being was centered on his watch and his sandwich.

At last the pause came. He hurried out to the buffet for his glass of beer, retired to the neighborhood of a column and went to it. During the rest of the play he laughed all the time.
